Gelding – How it Works

- Castrations are performed by a veterinarian or veterinary student under direct supervision by a licensed veterinarian. Veterinary assistant or technician students participate in non-surgical aspects of the procedure under direct veterinary supervision (injections, catheter placement, anesthesia monitoring, etc.).
- Stallions must be halter broke with two descended testicles and be at least four months of age, healthy, and at least a 4/9 Body Condition Score.
- Applications will be reviewed and NWESC will contact approved clinic participants with their appointment time in advance of the clinic.
- Each horse owner will be given a specific time to arrive at the clinic. Horse owners must arrive within 30-minutes prior to that time or their appointment may be cancelled. Please note that there may be considerable wait time during the clinic.
- Each horse must have at least one qualified handler with it at all times. If bringing multiple horses, multiple handlers are required.

Prior to the Gelding

- All stallions must be in good health and free from lice or infectious disease (including fever, nasal discharge, cough, etc.).
- All stallions should be clean and arrive in a well fitted halter with a sturdy lead rope (or stud chain, if needed for safe handling).
- Bring any vaccination and de-worming records to the clinic to confirm the horse is current. Current Tetanus vaccine is required and can be purchased at the castration clinic if needed.
- Upon arrival please park your horse trailer and check-in with one of the clinic staff prior to unloading the horse.

After Gelding

- Geldings will be monitored by the veterinary team following the procedure.
- On average, each horse will require a minimum of an hour of recovery time before he can safely travel home.
- Owners will receive aftercare instructions and agree to perform twice daily lunging after a 24-48 hour strict rest period, and provide any medication that may be required post procedure.
- No horses may be removed from the premises until official release by veterinary staff.
